Subject: Consultation on Tinted Windows in Taxis

In response to the above consultation, I would not like to see any changes to this condition which would reduce the ability to see through any of the vehicle windows as it would be detrimental to passenger safety. In fact, although 75% and 70% is probably OK for the front windscreen and front side windows, I think 34% for the remaining windows is already too low and would prefer to see this increased. I appreciate this would cause problems for existing licenced taxis but would like to see a higher level set for new applications.

Jacqui
